

Elk State Bank in Seneca Marks First Anniversary

Elk State Bank recently completed its first year of service to Seneca and the surrounding communities. Elk State Bank opened its doors on June 4, 2016.

Tim Ohlde, president said he's pleased and excited about Elk State Bank being in Seneca. "Having been on site first hand during this first year of operation (after the purchase of Baileyville State Bank of Seneca) has been a very rewarding experience. Meeting many customers and community patrons from Seneca and the surrounding area has been both a pleasure and a privilege. We are very thankful for our customers and our staff in Seneca who have made this a great first year. Welcoming aboard our newest staff member, Nate Kohake, who specializes in agriculture and commercial lending, has been a strong addition to a very professional and seasoned staff."

Familiar faces continue to staff the Seneca branch and assist customers with their deposit and lending needs. Customers can see Becky Lierz for deposit accounts in addition to consumer, home and real estate financing, Nate Kohake for agriculture, real estate and commercial lending and Monica Olberding, loan documentation and customer service. Amanda Haug continues to assist customers with new accounts and daily transactions in the main lobby while Paulette Grollmes and Shirley Claas share part-time responsibilities at the drive-through window.

Elk State Bank has been serving rural America since 1896. Coined "Your Rural Financial Partner," the bank prides itself in the areas of personal service, long term commitment and agricultural expertise.
